

Notes on Contributors

Albert Byamugisha is an Assistant Commissioner in charge of statistics, research, monitoring and evaluation in the Education Planning Department, Ministry of Education and Sports, Uganda as well as the Uganda National SACMEQ Research Coordinator and National EFA Coordinator, an expert in designing and implementing the information system for education planning, management, monitoring and evaluation. He is the head of Statistics, Monitoring and Evaluation Division of the Planning Department in the Ministry. He has a Diploma in Education and Bachelor of Statistics and Applied Economics (upper second) obtained from Makerere University, a Diploma in Pure Science and Master of Science (Statistics) obtained from Sheffield University, UK. He is the co-author of the book titled With Africa for Africa towards Quality Education for All, 1999 MLA Project. He is currently a Ph D candidate at the Graduate School of International Cooperation, Kobe University, Japan.

E-mail: abyamugisha@education.go.ug

Justus Bithaghalire is a teacher of commerce and economics in St. Mary's Secondary School Simba in Bundibugyo District, Uganda. He holds a Master of Education in Curriculum Studies of Makerere University. His interest is researching education in disadvantaged communities.

E-mail: justusibitha@yahoo.co.uk

Ambroise Dianda is currently a program officer in charge of advising the Permanent Secretary of the Burkina Faso 10 year development plan (PDDEB). He was appointed at this top position in the basic education sector after holding several key posts such as Secretary General of the National School of Administration, National Expert at the Analysis and Evaluation Unit of the Ministry of Economy and Finance, Inspector General of Services and Technical Adviser at the Ministry of Secondary and Higher Education, Director of Studies and Planning of the Ministry of Education. In his early career he taught mathematics and physics in secondary schools in Burkina Faso (then Upper Volta) and the Republic of Gabon. He has planned and managed numerous high profile education programs and projects funded by the UN system, ADB, OPEP, ACCT, etc. He is a founding member of COPREDA the Pan African Council for Research on Education based in Dakar, Sénégal. He holds a BA and an MA in Education from the University of Lomé (Togo) and Laval (Québec, Canada).

E-mail: aydianda@yahoo.fr

Tran Khanh Duc is a head of the Higher Education and VTE (Vocational and Technical Education) Department in the Faculty of Education- Viet Nam National University (VNU). He is a specialist in education and has been long time working and studying in the National Institute for Education Development and in the Department of Examination and Accreditation, which belong to the Vietnamese Ministry of Education and Training (MOET). He has implemented many research projects and published some books to education development. He also takes responsibility for many master programs for education and is advisers to some Ph.D. students. At present, he is a senior lecturer of education at the Faculty of Education, VNU. He was a visiting professor at CICE, Hiroshima University from 12/2007 till 3/2008. Email: kduc1954@yahoo.com

Harry Firman is a senior lecturer of science education and a former dean of the Faculty of Mathematics and Science Education at Indonesia University of Education. He did his graduate work on science education at the University of Education. His research interests include science education and science teacher education. He joined collaborative research on “classroom-level impact assessment of Japan’s mathematics and science education cooperation” organized by CICE, Hiroshima University. Recently he has published an article entitled Chemical Education in Indonesia and a research paper entitled “The difference between novice and expert chemistry teachers in transforming chemical knowledge for teaching.”

Email: harry_firman@upi.edu

Pierre Kouraogo is an Associate Professor of Applied Linguistics at the training and research unit (UFR-LAC) of the University of Ouagadougou, Burkina Faso. He got an MA in linguistics at the University of South Florida in 1976 and a Ph.D. at the University of London, Institute of Education in 1987. He has held several administrative and technical posts at the university (head of Department, Vice-Dean for Research and Cooperation of the Faculty of Letters), and in the Ministry of Basic Education and Literacy where he served for 7 years in the late seventies at the National Institute of Education. From 2003-2005 he was Director General of DGCRIF, a new institute in charge of research, educational innovation and training. He has published many articles in scientific journals and carried out several consultancy works in the education sector for various institutions such as the UNICEF, UNESCO and various NGOs. His particular areas of interests cover curriculum processes, languages in education and translation. He has been involved in various pre-service and in-service teacher training programs. He was recently a visiting professor at CICE, Hiroshima University from April to July 2008. He is an active member of the AA Dialogue network.

E-mail: pierre.kouraogo@univ-ouaga.bf

Carol Mutch is currently working in a senior government position in the Education Review Office in Wellington, New Zealand. The Education Review Office is the agency that conducts external evaluations in all government funded schools and early childhood centres. Prior to this, she was a professor at the University of Canterbury and, before that, the Christchurch College of Education. She began her career as a teacher before becoming involved in teacher education and educational research. She is the author of Doing Educational Research (NZCER Press, 2005) and editor of Challenging the notion of "other" (NZCER Press, 2006). She has written book chapter relating to theoretical frameworks for qualitative research (Sage), citizenship education in New Zealand (Lexington Books; Kluwer/CERC), the New Zealand early childhood curriculum (NZCER Press), education during the Great Depression (Peter Lang Publishing), and social studies in New Zealand (ERDC Press) as well as academic articles published in journals such as the International Journal of Educational Research, the International Journal of Social Education, the Diaspora, Indigenous and Minority Education journal, the Pacific Asian Education Journal, Curriculum Perspectives, the Asia Pacific Education Review, Citizenship, Social and Economics Education, the Qualitative Research Journal and the New Zealand Journal of Social Studies. She is currently the editor of the Pacific-Asian Education Journal and Curriculum Matters and sits on the editorial board of the Citizenship, Social and Economics Education journal, Journal of Educational Policy, Set: Research Information for Teachers, and the New Zealand Journal of Educational Studies. In April 2005, she received the Critical Issues in Curriculum Early Career Award, presented at the Annual Meeting of the American Educational Research Association Conference. In 2004 she was recognised for Academic Excellence by Griffith University and in 2003 received the Christchurch College of Education's award for Sustained Excellence in Tertiary Teaching. Email: carol.mutch@ero.govt.nz

Mary Goretti Nakabugo is Senior Lecturer in the Department of Curriculum, Teaching & Media in Makerere University, Uganda. She is currently on secondment to Mary Immaculate College, University of Limerick as a Research Fellow to the Irish-African Partnership for Research Capacity Building consortium. She holds a Masters and Ph.D. Degree of the University of Cape Town (South Africa) and a B.A./Education Degree of Makerere University. Her research interests include curriculum reform, pedagogy, assessment for learning, and education development. She was a Visiting Professor at CICE, Hiroshima University and a Japan Foundation Fellow in 2006 and 2007 respectively. She is a member of the Society for Research into Higher Education and has undertaken education studies in multiple contexts including Uganda, South Africa and Japan, among others. E-mail: mgnakabugo@educ.mak.ac.ug

Akira Ninomiya is now the Executive Vice-President for Research at Hiroshima University, but has been Professor of Comparative and International Education at the Graduate School of Education of Hiroshima University for more than 30 years. He is one of the founding members of CICE, and became the first Director of CICE. He has been one of the OECD/CERI Project on Schooling for Tomorrow members nominated by the Japanese Government for the past 10 years, and organized the first meeting of the Project in 1997 in Hiroshima, the result of which is reported in Innovating Schools, issued by CERI 1999. He is a member of the Special Committee on Foreign Students of the National Council for Education of the Japanese Government, and has contributed and played great leadership toward internationalization of higher education in Japan. E-mail: animiya@hiroshima-u.ac.jp

Jennifer Rault-Smith is Chief Director for Curriculum and Assessment Development in the Department of Education in South Africa. She is responsible for teaching and learning for children from birth to four years as well as teaching and learning in schools from the reception year, Grade R, to the end of compulsory schooling in Grade 9. She is also responsible for implementing an inclusive education system and addressing the needs of learners who experience barriers to learning. She was previously a teacher and a principal before becoming Director for Curriculum and Examinations in one of the provincial offices, the Western Cape Department of Education. She has worked extensively in the development of curriculum and assessment in the National Curriculum Statement, which is the official curriculum in South Africa. She is currently working on the implementation of a General Education Certificate for Grade 9 learners, ensuring access to Grade R to all 5 year olds in the country, and improving conditions and facilities in schools for learners who experience barriers to learning. Her interest in assessment has led to her presenting papers at a number of international conferences, publishing books on assessment in schools and publishing in educational journals.

Email: rault-smith.j@doe.gov.za or jraultsmith@gmail.com

Sylvia Schmelkes is Head of the Institute for Research on the Development of Education in Universidad Iberoamericana, Mexico City. She has been a researcher for 34 years in the fields of quality of education, adult education, values education and intercultural education. She founded and headed the General Coordination of Bilingual and Intercultural Education in the Ministry of Education during the 2001-2006 administration. She has published almost 200 pieces of research and essays in the form of book chapters or scientific articles in specialized journals, as well as some 20 books. She chaired the governing board of the Centre for Educational Research and Innovation of OECD between 2002 and 2004. She has just been awarded the Comenius Medal by UNESCO and the Ministry of National Education, Youth and Sport of the Czech Republic, which she will receive on 26 November, 2008.

E-mail: sylvia.schmelkes@uia.mx

Burhanuddin Tola obtained his Ph.D. in educational measurement from the University of Pittsburgh. He has been assigned since 2005 as Director of the Center for Educational Assessment, a national center under Office of Education Research and Development, Ministry of National Education of the Republic of Indonesia. His research interest includes effective school and assessment factors in school quality improvement. He is in charge of managing the implementation of national school leaving examinations and cross-national educational assessment programs in Indonesia, such as TIMSS, PISA, and PIRLS.

Email: btola@centrin.net.id