Today, the trainees had a workshop with Prof. Kazuhiro Yoshida, CICE, Hiroshima University in TIC.

The workshop with Prof. Yoshida in TIC

Firstly, Prof. Yoshida let trainees review previous lectures and knowledge that they got through this training program. After that, the trainees were divided into four groups and each group summarized some theses about the education policy formulation and analyzed them for learning improvement. And then, they discussed how they could use those for the education policy effectively. It was discussed that we should have not picked up the results of research for education policy because each report just covers only one country or region. And they discussed the purpose of research and what people should have paid attention to formulation of policies. It was the first day of workshop but they discussed a lot and sometimes they forgot about the time. It was also a valuable time for me to think about the meaning of research.
