

Teaching and Learning Approaches Across Borders (TALAAB) Seminar

You are invited to a seminar which will explore the rewards and challenges of carrying out research collaboratively across borders.

We are a group of academics, educationalists and development specialists working in Africa, Asia and Europe. Our research has explored historical and current values of African and other pedagogies. It has drawn on real examples to discuss how best to manage contradictions between international and local players in driving education reform and change.

A key focus of our work, and submission of papers to international journals, has been education policy making in Ghana. This seminar shares the lessons learned from the Ghana research and paves the way for participants to initiate and engage in cross border research.
