

Girls' education and gender equality in conflict and displacement: reflections on the evidence

Speaker

Dr Amy North

Professor of Education, Migration and Development
Academic Head of Learning and Teaching (AHLT),
Department of Education, Practice and Society
UCL Institute of Education (IOE)

Dr North's research is concerned with understanding inequalities in and through education in low-income contexts and contexts affected by migration and displacement. She has particular interests in girls' and women's education and the experiences of migrant learners. She is currently leading work on gender and girls' education in conflict and crisis contexts as part of the Education Research in Conflict and Crisis (ERICC) research consortium. She is co-editor (with Elaine Chase) of Migration, Education and Development: Critical Perspectives in a Moving World (Bloomsbury, 2022) and co-author (with Elaine Unterhalter) of Education, Poverty and Global Goals for Gender Equality: How People make Policy Happen (Routledge, 2017).
